

Philippos Theocharidis studied Electronic Music and Electronics (BSc) at Keele University and Music Technology (MA) at Newcastle-Upon-Tyne, UK, while his PhD at the Ionian University in Corfu, Greece was in human-computer interaction for the composition and performance of electronic music. He has taught Music Technology, Electronic Music, Sound Recording and Computer Interaction for Musical Applications at the University of Macedonia, the Ionian University and the Technological Institute of the Ionian Islands. Currently, he is an associate senior lecturer at the Hellenic Mediterranean University in Crete, Greece. He is also active as a recording and live sound engineer and a sound designer for theatre. He has been lead technician / co-organiser for numerous electroacoustic music concerts utilizing multi-speaker arrangements for sound diffusion. His compositional and improvisation work, mostly interactive electronic music, has been performed in various festivals including the Electroacoustic Music Days (2003-19), SMC (2007), Echopolis (2013), Salford Sonic Fusion Festival (2013), Electric Nights (2016), Across the Great Divide, Human – Machine Improvisation (Onassis Cultural Center, 2012), di.p.art (2012), 11th Audiovisual Arts Festival (Athens Concert Hall - Megaron, 2017). <https://philippostheocharidis.wordpress.com>