

"BYRON" game is now available for everyone!

"BYRON", the innovative experiential educational serious game for exploring the social identity of the Greek Revolution is now available free of charge from the project's website:

<https://hilab.di.ionio.gr/byron/distrib/>

or by selecting the option: "The Game" => "Downloads" from the website's menu.

The "BYRON" game was developed by the Humanistic and Social Informatics Laboratory (HILab) of the Department of Informatics of the Ionian University with the contribution and cooperation of members of the Department of History and the Department of Regional Development. The Scientific Coordinator of the entire project was the Director of HILab, Associate Professor of the Department of Informatics, Dr. Phivos Mylonas, while the project was funded by the Hellenic Foundation for Research & Innovation (H.F.R.I.) in the framework of the 1st Call of the Action "Science and Society" "200 Years since the Greek Revolution".

More information about the game, as well as rich multimedia material with photos, presentation videos, user guides for students and teachers are provided on the project's website:

<https://hilab.di.ionio.gr/byron/index.php/en/home-2/>